University Information Sheet

The University of Bologna was probably the first University in the western world. The institution that we today call the University began to take shape in the city of Bologna at the end of the eleventh century, when masters of Grammar, Rhetoric and Logic began to devote themselves to the law. In the nineteenth century a committee of historians, led by the famous Italian poet Giosuè Carducci, attributed the birth of the University to the year 1088.

In the 14th Century, so-called "artists" - scholars of Medicine, Philosophy, Arithmetic, Astronomy, Logic, Rhetoric, and Grammar - began to collaborate with the school of jurists. In 1364, the teaching of Theology was instituted.

In the 15th Century Greek and Hebrew studies were instituted, and in the 16th Century those of "natural magic", that is, experimental science. In the 16th century the first studies of plastic surgery were performed in Bologna. But the golden era of Bolognese Medicine flourished in the 17th Century, when the microscope was employed for anatomical research.

The University's fame had spread throughout Europe and it was a destination for many illustrious guests. In 1888 the eighth centennial of the University was celebrated, with a grand ceremony where all the universities of the world convened in Bologna to honour the mother of universities, representing their common roots and ideals of progress and tolerance. The ceremony became an international festival of studies. The Magna Charta

On 18 September 1988 in Bologna's main square (Piazza Maggiore), the Rectors of 430 universities signed the Magna Charta Universitatum Europaeum. The Magna Charta, which has since been signed by another 400 Rectors, affirmed the autonomy of the University, the essential link between teaching and research activities which transcend the limits imposed by "any geographical or political border". The signing took place as part of the ninth centennial of the University of Bologna, which was formally recognised as the Alma Mater of all universities.

5 campuses

Since 1989 until now, the Alma Mater has carried out the largest decentralisation programme in the history of Italian universities, establishing new University Campus branches in four towns in Romagna - Cesena, Forlì, Ravenna and Rimini. In 1998 the University also inaugurated a branch in Buenos Aires (Argentina).

Reform of the European University System

On 19 June 1999 in the Aula Magna of the University of Bologna, 29 Ministers of Higher Education from all over Europe signed the so-called Declaration of Bologna, which defines the "most relevant objectives for the creation of a European Area of higher education" and the promotion of this system in the world.

To meet these objectives European Union members must restructure their university systems by 2010, following the guidelines known as the Bologna Process.

Teaching, Learning, Research and International dimension

84,215: the students who have chosen the University of Bologna, making it the most popular university in Italy. Teaching and extra-curricular activities take place in 1.086.134,88 m2 of space in the campuses of Bologna, Cesena, Forlì, Ravenna and Rimini.

Proof of Language proficiency

It depends on the chosen course. Usually a university certificate stating the language level is enough, but some courses could ask for an official certificate such as TOEFL, IELTS or PLIDA in case of Italian language requirement
